

WINE LIST

“From its inception, Langdon Hall has always had a connection to fine wines,” explains Braden Bennett, Managing Partner. The original builders of Langdon Hall, Pauline and Eugene Langdon Wilks, also owned a French château near Tours in the Loire Valley. One can imagine the cellars brimming with cases of wine from the nearby regions of Chinon for reds, or Vouvray for whites, brought back with them for their summers in Ontario. To this day, the cellars at Langdon Hall are stocked with wines from the Loire Valley, and around the world.

Since opening as a hotel in 1989, Langdon Hall’s modern history has also had a firm connection to fine wine. This wine list houses more than 16,000 bottles of wine from as near as the Niagara Peninsula to as far as the Southern Hemisphere, representing more than 1,400 producers. At the beginning of each section readers will find an introduction to one of Langdon Hall’s six sommeliers and a suggestion or a tip that might help make a selection. The country house’s team of sommeliers are more than happy to help guests find the right bottle to pair with their meal.

Faye MacLachlan is Langdon Hall's Director of Wine, responsible for managing the country house's wine cellar and a team of fellow sommeliers, each of whom are just as passionate about wine, and trained to find the right bottle for every occasion. Faye works closely with Langdon Hall's award winning chef Jason Bangerter. They collaborate to find wines that accentuate Chef's seasonal "sense of place" dishes. Faye explains, "at Langdon Hall the wine list is designed to work with Chef's cuisine. We are passionate about wine and we want our guests to have the most enjoyable dining experience we can give them." While Faye concedes that the Langdon Hall's wine list is extensive, she and her team of sommeliers are here to assist guests navigate through the pages, or provide them space to contemplate all the great labels.

Faye is enthusiastic about Langdon Hall's collection for Champagnes and sparkling wines from Canada and abroad. "There is nothing that marks the beginning of a special occasion than the pop of a Champagne cork", she explains. Faye encourages guests to ask about some of the smaller, less known producers on the list from the famous region, as well as the selections from classic houses. "But don't forget our local bubbles," Faye reminds guests, "we're happy to help find a great sparkling wine from nearby or afar."

Sommelier Nikki Does loves Langdon Hall's selection of wines by the half bottle. She explains, "A half bottle provides the opportunity to sip more slowly, ponder more deeply and savour more thoroughly. Or, do as I would do and use these bottles as an opportunity to sample more wines, design your own tasting menu pairings or start small and finish big." Nikki is particularly keen on small bottle versions of 1er Cru Chablis, Vietti Barolo or local producers, Cave Springs and Tawse.

Head Sommelier Jordan Mazzanti suggests guests interested in a local white wine to pair with Chef Jason Bangerter's 'sense of place' cuisine, consider Riesling from the Niagara Peninsula. He explains, "Any of the various vintages of Cave Spring Cellar's 'CSV' Rieslings show that Canada is capable of making great white wine with remarkable complexity." Jordan will often point out the wines of the CSV label because, he says, "The prices reflect how overlooked this particular bottling is."

Sommelier Emily Kirsch says rosé is a style of wine she loves to re-introduce to her guests. She explains, “It’s extremely versatile and very food friendly which is often overlooked.” Emily suggests rosé can be paired with snacks on a sunny afternoon on the terrace or even rich cold weather dishes, adding, “With so many styles to choose from, dry to semi sweet, still and full of bubbles, rosé is for a lot of people an outside the box wine pairing that I love to pour for our guests.”

In light of Langdon Hall's extensive selection, Sommelier Jeremy Ennis likes to find out what a guest is looking for when he helps them choose a red wine. He explains, "I ask them to decide first if they're looking to enjoy a wine or grape they recognize, perhaps an old favourite, or are they looking to enjoy a wine that pairs best with their dishes?" Lately, Jeremy says, he's found success in recommending "Cru Beaujolais" like Fleurie or Morgon to pair with lighter dishes, like fish. He explains, "Gamay is an often overlooked grape but because of its nuanced complexity that's both fruit driven and earthy, its medium body and the absence of tannins it tends to go quite well with some of our seafood dishes and gives red wine lovers a red option to enjoy with their meal."

Sommelier José Luis Fernández suggests ‘drinking your dessert’, but hopes that dessert wines like Sauternes, Monbazillac, Tokaji and Icewine “never become too cool, because these are some of the best values in wine.” José suggests guests try something they haven’t had before with a plate of selected cheeses, ask him or his colleagues for a pairing with one of Langdon Hall’s renown desserts.
